

ABSTRACT

A pocket tool includes a handle and at least one ancillary tool coupled to the handle. In an exemplary embodiment, a flashlight is coupled to the handle, the flashlight having a first light source directed in a first direction and a second light
5 source directed in a second direction. In another embodiment, the pocket tool may include means for biasing the flashlight into the open position.